

Cannes 2022 Selection Features 25 New Productions Shot on KODAK Film

May 17, 2022

Mia Hansen-Løve, Nicolas Bedos, Owen Kline, Serge Bozon, Charlotte Le Bon, Nicolas Pariser and Jesse Eisenberg all shoot on KODAK film stock.

ROCHESTER, N.Y.--(BUSINESS WIRE)--May 17, 2022-- Kodak Motion Picture and Entertainment is celebrating twenty-five productions shot on film at Cannes Film Festival this year. Four on-film titles will compete in Un Certain Regard with eleven of the twenty-three titles selected for Directors' Fortnight also captured on film. And as testimony to the next generation of filmmakers' commitment to analog capture, four of the shot on film titles premiering at the festival this year were helmed by first time feature directors.

It's been a strong year for productions shot on film, with 2022 Oscar recognition of shot on KODAK film titles including Don't Look Up, Licorice Pizza, West Side Story, The Worst Person in the World, Spencer and No Time to Die.

"On behalf of the entire team at Kodak, congratulations to the motion picture artists whose exceptional work was selected to screen and compete at the 2022 Cannes Film Festival," said Steve Bellamy, President of Kodak Motion Picture and Entertainment. "Film capture continues to grow exponentially across the feature film, TV, music and commercial segments, as evidenced by the strong showing of on film titles across the Cannes festival this year. Kodak would like to extend a huge "thank you" to the artists who evangelize and fight for the medium. There's simply nothing as magical as the photochemical image and we are honored to help these auteurs realize their artistic visions on film," said Bellamy.
